A Home on the Prairie. BY WILLIAM T. G. WEAVER.

[Composed between Alton and Gainexville.] O for a home on the lone grassy Prairie, Secure from coquettes and the city belle's arts; There let me live with Contentment, sweet fairy,
Where Love folds his wings, and the meidens has hearts.

Yes, let me dwell in the wide, sunny meadows-My couch the soft grass, and my pillow wild flowers, Where the streams ripple undarkened by shadows, And the lark sings as sweet as the thrush in the

Out in the Prairie-the blue sky above me-By a cool spring in the midst of the plain, Give me a cot and a malden to love me, And ne'er will I seek after glory again. Alton, August, 1856.
